Featured Research

Recovery from problem gambling: a qualitative study

Anderson, S., Dobbie, F., & Reith, G. (2009).

The study uses longitudinal qualitative methods to explore the motivations, attitudes and self-perceptions of gamblers and problem gamblers, drawing out the meanings that gambling has for them, and how this influences behaviour in a series of rich narrative accounts. It is based on a cohort of 50 problem, recovering and recreational gamblers (from across Glasgow), interviewed on three occasions over a period of 20 months. At the point of recruitment to the study, participants could be divided into three main groups: problem gamblers in contact with services (n=15), problem gamblers not in contact with services (n=20) and recreational gamblers (n=15).
